33 Lawry Heights, St Helens

A RARE FIND IN ST HELENS – READY TO BUILD

This substantial 755m² land lot, slightly sloping and fronting a protected bushland reserve, is ready and waiting for the building process to begin. Located in a peaceful neighbourhood, this block has all the infrastructure in place for the slab to be poured.

The current owner has certainly done the hard yards for the next, securing Planning Approval for two unique dwellings (valid until May 2026), along with completing all required Site and Bushfire Assessments. Not to mention the plans for an exquisite coastal native garden by acclaimed Landscape Designer Karen Johnson. New fences, two Garden Star sheds and existing power, water and sewerage connections complete the picture here.

An unexpected drawcard is the inclusion of house plans for two unique dwellings/visitor accommodation, cleverly conceived by renowned local Building Designer Jennifer Binns. While the original plans called for the use of the beautiful natural building material known as 'hemcrete', a minor amendment request can easily be made to council for a more conventional building material to be used. Possibly live in one and rent the other, or simply build two dwellings and sell to the next person. The options here are exciting to say the least.
